

As a subscriber to XM Satellite Radio, I find it ridiculous that the FCC would try to step in to limit what information my service can provide to me. Satellite radio provides variety and quality that are not available elsewhere. I pay for these services and it should not be up to the National Association of Broadcasters to dictate what I am permitted to hear. I feel that to prohibit satellite radio stations to provide traffic and weather channels to their customers is a strong arm tactic. If the National Association of Broadcasters is so terrified by satellite radio, perhaps they should consider improving what they do instead of trying to harm the quality of their competition.

Please don't allow this to happen.

Respectfully,
Amy Thomas
